“THE LAND BETWEEN is not only an excellent film, but also a political catalyst that unsettles the viewer and turns his empathy into anger. The sort of anger that brings the anticipation of change.”

SYNOPSIS (Short)

THE LAND BETWEEN offers an intimate insight into the hidden and desperate lives of Sub-Saharan African migrants living in the mountains of northern Morocco. For most, their dream is to enter Europe by jumping a highly-militarized barrier into Melilla, a Spanish enclave on the African continent.

With unique and unprecedented access, this film documents the everyday life of these migrants trapped in limbo, as well as the extreme violence and constant mistreatment they face from both the Moroccan and Spanish authorities. It also explores many universal questions, including how and why people are prepared to risk everything, including their life, to leave their country, their family and friends, in search of a new and better life.

SYNOPSIS (Long)

THE LAND BETWEEN is set in the mountains of Gourougou, in Northern Morocco. Hundreds of Sub-Saharan migrants live and hide in these mountains, outside of organized trafficking and smuggling networks.

For most migrants living in Gourougou, their dream is to enter Melilla, an autonomous Spanish city, a European exclave in Africa located on the Northern coast of Morocco. The two continents are separated by a barrier built and funded by the European Union, which was constructed for the sole purpose of keeping African migrants out of Europe. The European Union pays Morocco millions of Euro to control this border and the surrounding forests.

THE LAND BETWEEN is an intimate, yet explosive portrait of life in the Gourougou Mountains, and follows the daily lives of migrants as they dream of jumping the fence to Europe and entering the migrant camp in Melilla. It also documents the extreme violence and mistreatment around the border areas by both the Moroccan and Spanish authorities, which migrants must endure on a daily basis.

With unique and unprecedented access, this film explores many universal questions, including how and why people are willing to risk everything, including their life, to leave their country, their family and friends, in search of a new and better life.
David Fedele is an award-winning documentary filmmaker from Australia.

Generally working alone, self-producing and self-funding his projects, David is particularly interested in exploring cultural, humanitarian and social justice issues.

His films have covered such diverse topics as Sub-Saharan African migration in Morocco, electronic waste in Ghana, and illegal logging in Papua New Guinea.

David’s films have been broadcast widely, and screened at international film festivals around the world, winning numerous awards. David was recently selected to participate in Berlinale Talents as part of Berlin International Film Festival in February 2014.
